

Scenarrio 2 game: North Flank: Lannes vs Bagration

We played a game of this scene in the Ludus Belli Store past Saturday. I have to tell you that the two opponents were new to this kind of games and they had never played a Napoleonic. One of them is 16 years old.

I explained them the rules to clarify any doubt that could appear during the game.

We made only one exception to the sceneraio, the French player started with a second "Chit" (He was the 16 years old boy).

Turn 1: Both players place their chits in their deployment zones:

The allied player advances and the French player does not move from his positions.

Turn 2: both players roll the die that allow them to put on the map 2 more "Chits" in that turn. The allied player moves all his units towards the Santon and the French player remains in their positions without moving.

Turn 3: the allied player awaits the arrival of units to support the Santon attack ... the French remains in their positions, while the units of their rear advance

Turn 4: The fog begins to dissipate, so the units can already be detected at 1 MU distance. The units on the corner of the French left flank are discovered. On the French side, the 2nd Brigade of Suchet that goes with Lannes and on the allied side the Dragoons of Voropaitzky, the light cavalry of Wittgenstein and a Russian artillery battery on horseback.

There is no preparation fire on the French side (the allied artillery can't shoot either because the cavalries block the LOS).

Movement Phase: Voropaitzky can charge against Suchet with the support of Wittgenstein, the rest of the allied units in attack distance go on the hidden french units, the units are discovered and the combats are marked.

French defensive rifle fire: The 2nd Suchet brigade fires at Voropaitzky, who leads the charge, but can't stop his attack, the artillery in the Santos fires Shrapnel against the Cossacks of Tchaplitz, causing them to lose a step and retreat stunned, in their retreat they collide with the infantry of Kamensky II, with that, both units disorganize. Cafarelli's 1st Brigade fires at the Uvarov dragoons that lead the attack against them supported by Gladkov's cosacks, but they can't stop their attack. On the opposite, Cafarelli's 2nd brigade opens fire on Weber's cuirassiers, they were supported in the attack by the cuirassiers of Caramelli, they manage to disorganize the cuirassiers and made them to step back, paralyzing the attack of the russian heavy cavalry.

Combat phase: The cavalry is not able to push back the 1st Cafarely Brigade and both sides continue locked fighting. The charge of the Dragoons of Voropaitzky and the lighth cavalry of Wittgenstein does push back the 2nd Brigade of Suchet with Lannes, who is stunned.

Ally turn, Reorganization Phase, the stunned marker is removed from the 2nd Suchet Brigade.

Russian artillery Defensive Fire Phase: The artillery displayed on the Russian right flank fires against the 3rd Suchet Brigade, it manages to disorganize it and cause them to retreat.

French Fire Preparation Phase: Santon battery shoots again against the Cossacks of Tchaplitz causing them to disband, collide with kamensky II and dissolve as combat unit, Kamensky II disbands too and collides in his retreat against the 2nd Brigade of Engelhardt, remaining disorganized and Kamensky also dissolves as a combat unit.

Movement Phase: The french units in "Chits" advance towards the front, the rest of units remain in their positions.

Turn 5: Allied Reorganization Phase: Engelhardt ChM with the moral of Bagration, which is associated with the unit, passes the checkup and is stunned, Weber ChM and takes double 6!!, is a catastrophic failure that cause the unit to retreat and flee to his rear. Galdkov sees the cuirassiers flee, ChM and also gets disbanded, the thing does not look good for the allies.

Defensive artillery fire Phase: Santon battery shoots against Engelhardt, but it does not manage to hurt him.

Allied artillery fire preparation phase: The only artillery that can shoot is against the 3rd Suchet Brigade, but it does not impact.

Movement Phase: The Voropaitzky dragoons attack the 3rd Suchet Brigade, Wittgenstein positions himself in Wellatitz to block Lannes and protect Voropaitzky's flank. Engelhardt advances to bosenitz to seek protection. The batteries in the allied left flank are deployed and the Dolgoruki brigade is positioned behind them.

French rifle Phase: The 2nd Suchet Brigade fires at Wittgenstein, but he's well covered in the town and receives no damage.

There is no allied rifle fire so let's go to the combat: In the center, cavalries do not manage to push back the 1st Cafarelli Brigade and both sides continue to be locked together, but Voropaitzky attacks the disorganized 3rd Suchet and he makes them to retreat in disarray. The Suchet brigade dissolves as a combat unit.

French turn, Reorganization Phase: no there are disorganized units.

Allied defensive artillery fire: The right flank allied artillery target the Nansouty cuirassiers, but they do not manage to cause damage to them, but in the allied left flank, the batteries form a group of artillery that discharges full shrapnel to the 2nd Cafarelli Brigade and make it run disorganized, in the scape, their crash against Kellerman's light cavalry and here the disaster happens in the French side, Kellerman gets disorganized, but Cafarelli disbands and the units around him has to check. The 2nd of Walthier does not pass the ChM for 1 and is disorganized, Kelerman passes the ChM and does not run again, but the 2nd of Nansouty cuirassiers and the 1st Brigade of Walthier fail it by more than 1 point and disband also. The disbandment of the 1st of Walthier makes ChM Murat, who disbands too! And the disband of this one cause the 1 d'Erlon who was behind, gets disbanded too, a real disaster for the French player.

French preparation fire phase: The Santon battery shoots at Engelhardt and cause it to regress disorganized.

Movement Phase: In view of the disband of the French center, the units in rear do not move.

French rifle Phase: The 2nd Suchet Brigade fires at Wittgenstein, but he's well covered in the town and receives no damage.

In the combat phase nothing happens, everyone keeps stuck.

Turn 6: Allied reorganization: todas las unidades con un grado de desorganización ChM y lo pasan recuperando un grado.... Engelhardt para a estar aturdido y las caballerías en desbandada pasan a desorganizadas. All units with a degree of disorganization ChM and spend it recovering a grade. Engelhardt gets out of the stun and the disbanded cavalries go unorganized.

French defensive artillery fire phase: Santon battery shoots but does not cause damage to Engelhardt.

Allied artillery fire phase: las artillerías del ala derecha disparan al Santon, pero no hacen nada y las del ala izquierda a las unidades en el arroyo, pero tampoco consiguen hacer nada. The right flank artillery shoot the Santon, but they do nothing. The left flank shoot the units in the stream, but they can not do anything either.

Movement Phase: Voropaitzky's Dragoons turn to the Santon, Dolgoruki advances to take the 1st Cafarelli Brigade from the flank in the attack of the cavalries and Bagration joins the unit, the combat between Uvarov and Lannes continues, the combat ends in a draw and the units are still locked.

French turn, Reorganization phase: The Murat and d'Erlon units spend their ChM, but the rest do not.

Artillery phase, neither defensive or offensive impact.

Combat phase: Cafarelli Brigade is forced to retreat disorganized leaving its right flank exposed to the allied side.

Turn 7: Allied reorganization phase: All units pass their ChM.

French defensive fire: Santon battery stun Engelhardt once again.

Allied artillery does not fire.

Movement phase: Voropaitzky's cavalry, the Dolgoruki Brigade and the cavalry of the center attack the Santon in the rear and flank.

Combat phase: The battery is destroyed and the allies get the position.

French player without the possibility of doing anything, the french player surrenders. The game is for the allied player.

